Creator Information

Authority Name Gano, John Henry

Authority History John Henry Gano was born in Illinois in 1873 and raised in Iowa. Upon arriving in Vermillion, Alberta around 1904 he opened a photograph studio. With his brothers, he relocated in 1907 to homestead near Wainwright, Alberta. Gano continued to take photographs, becoming the official photographer for the Board of Trade. About 1909 Gano moved into town and by 1912 he had purchased a lot and begun construction of a new studio. That same year he returned to the United States and married Bessie Enos in Illinois. Their son Elmer Fulton Gano was born in Wainwright in December 1912.

Gano purchased an automobile in 1914 and hired an assistant who would be mainly responsible for the studio portraits. Gano used his new vehicle to travel around the province taking photographs, often taking his family with him. Bessie assisted in hand colouring the images. Later that year he sold his studio and moved his family back to the United States, where he appears to move back and forth between Wainwright. A daughter, Marjorie Oregonia Gano, was born in Oregon in 1920.

Through the 1920s Gano moved his family between Wainwright and Unity, Saskatchewan. A second daughter, Lavon Virginia Gano, was born in 1929.

By the 1930s Gano settled with his family back in Wainwright, eventually moving back to the farm. His son Elmer often accompanied him on summer road trips around Alberta and appears to have worked regularly with his father as a photographer.

In 1941 the family moved to Calgary and then Red Deer, Alberta. John and Elmer continued to take photographs, mainly school classes and studio portraits. John Henry Gano passed away in Red Deer in 1947 and his wife Bessie Enos Gano passed away in 1964. Both are buried in the Red Deer Cemetery.
