Dear Mother:

Your parcel of two shirts arrived in good shape yesterday. I am really swanky now. However it seems that I am going to have an end to my good time in the big city. for , while at least. The boss says that he needs me elsewhere so guess I'll have to go back to the old stamping ground. That will be hard to take after the good time I have had here. Moreover I have met some very swell gals,,, so going back to a place where there arent any worth associating with will be a loss.

Had a letter from my friend Don Young of Canmore the other day. He is in Belgium or thereabouts. Has found the battle pretty tough (he is a gunner of some kind) but is looking forward to a bit of leave in England. Like Don very much and consider him one of my best friends.

How is Nicky getting along? And Nicky's mother? And what is the news of Nicky's papa? Or is there any at the moment? He should be starting to hit his stride pretty soon. Is he a blond like his uncle was before he became bald (and how).

BAIR MAIL
Havent heard yet just how you spent your Xmas but assume that it was a success with all of the relations in the neighborhood participating to some extent. How are Aunt May and Uncle Charlie now days.? And what about Charlie? Havent heard of him for a long time. Have run across several chaps here lately who know Charlie though. All have asked about him.

Have not told my maid, Aminta, that I am going to leave. She will probably shed copious tears as she has become quite attached to me. As a matter of fact she is almost carrying the mother role too far. I think I am old enough now to look after myself. She doesnt though and still tells me what shoes, what underwear and what coat to wear.

This morning I am trying to answer a lot of letters that I got around Xmas time so am going to let this go as a note. The only new thing I can tell you is that I was away for a few days a while ago and spent most of it shivering in snow storms. Also drove one place where there were drifts five feet deep. Shades of Canada.

Say hello to Nicky and Joan for me and all my love to you and Tebe,

Alan
