Dear Muri,

I would like to have got a note away that would reach you by the 28th but am afraid this will not make it. In many ways it hardly seems a year, since events have been so varied. It has been a very hard time for you however and I wish I could have been with you.

I hope now that you will be well rested after your many trials of last summer and fall.

There has been a bit more satisfaction in the war this past three weeks - and a glimmering of the pattern of things in the future. Have seen some interesting country & places in the last couple of weeks. Was in one town that seemed to be in a pre-war state. There were innumerable things in the shops that have not been seen in London - or Montreal - for quite a while. - From women's girdles to electric irons - films - electric washing machines - ice cream - coat hangers

 - and the street cars were running, seems rather dead to come back to the old stamping ground. Will probably be out on the beat again soon however.
 Rather expect to take a longer trip than usual next time. If so will see some new country - & pick up the usual
 knick-knack by way of souvenir.
 Must away for tonight Mum.
 All my love. Am thinking of you always. Alan.
